One idea. A script you can say aloud.

Plan the explanation before you spend credits. Use this sheet for your own script, then keep a separate text copy of the spoken words.

Topic / question the video answers

Who is watching, and what do they already know?

One takeaway: “After watching, they will understand…”

Target length: _____ Read-aloud time: _____ Draft / date: _____

Build one beat at a time

Write the exact narration on the left. On the right, sketch one simple visual idea. Add another copy of this page for more beats. These are planning notes, not fixed scene commands.

1 · Hook — spoken words Open with the viewer’s question or problem.	Visual note What could make the question clear?
2 · Short answer — spoken words Give the takeaway in plain language.	Visual note One object, comparison or relationship.
3 · Explain — spoken words One step or reason; avoid “and also”.	Visual note What changes or connects?
4 · Make it concrete — spoken words A checked example or the next step.	Visual note Keep labels short; note any required fact.
5 · Close — spoken words Repeat the takeaway. What should they do next?	Visual note What should the viewer remember?

Check it before you build it.

Facts and sources

Check names, numbers, dates and cause-and-effect claims against a primary or reputable source. Record the exact page and context. Rewrite or remove anything you cannot confirm. Use extra copies for more claims.

Claim / beat number: _____
Source title + URL: _____
Checked date / supporting passage or data: _____
Decision (keep / rewrite / remove) + correction: _____

Script preflight

- ☐ The opening gets to the question; every beat supports the one takeaway.
- ☐ I read it aloud, fixed awkward sentences and timed the full script with pauses.
- ☐ I checked claims and wrote numbers and names as I want them spoken.
- ☐ I saved the narration as plain text, separate from headings, sources and visual notes.

Before spending credits in Creator

- ☐ I watched the examples at kadapt.com/creator to judge whether the drawn style fits.
- ☐ I checked only the narration in the free script checker. Its time is an estimate; I copied or downloaded my text before leaving.
- ☐ I will paste the narration into Creator’s own-script flow. This worksheet is not an import format; visual notes are my planning reference.
- ☐ I will review the script and any available voice or plan review before approving the next step.
- ☐ I will read each step’s credit quote before approving it. Research, planning, voice and drawing can use credits; edits or retries may cost more. I will pause if the quote or result is unclear.

Keep this sheet and your script copy. After generation, watch and listen to the whole video before publishing.
